- 1. On the evening of 21 March, a mysterious telephone call (actually made from the CID) to Suan Kularb, Phibul's headquarters, reported that a Naval unit had already occupied the CID. In actual fact, a senior lieutenant and several Naval ratings had stopped at the CID to inquire if they might visit Vice Admiral Luang Nawa Vichitr who was reported to have been arrested. A telephone call from the CID had falsely reported the arrest to the Naval Signal Center. The Navy group withdrew upon learning that no officer had been placed under custody.
- 2. As a result of the visit, the CID was immediately mobilized for any emergency, issuing all its available machine guns. It was at this moment that two truck-loads of constables arrived from Suppression Headquarters. Had it not been for the restraint imposed by the officers in charge of the CID, and particularly by Luang Phisit Witayakarn*, a shooting fracas would have resulted. Police Major General Phao Sriyanon is still trying to ascertain who made the false telephone messages.
